

Raku Ho'olaule'a 2023

Supported by a generous grant from the Susan Rogers-Aregger Memorial Collage & Clay Foundation

Founded in 1977, Raku Ho'olaule'a (a celebration of raku) brings together ceramic artists to participate in raku and related firing techniques at a campout which is held in a beautiful beach setting on the North Shore of O'ahu. Objects glazed and fired at the beach are juried by experts in contemporary and traditional raku for an exhibition.

THE CAMPOUT

Thursday, March 23 - Sunday March 26, 2023

Raku Ho'olaule'a is focused around a weekend of communing, glazing and firing ceramic artworks by the beach at Camp Mokule'ia. Participants are organized in groups, each with their own kilns, equipment and glazes. Jurying of artwork for the exhibition will take place at the beach on Sunday morning prior to striking camp. Participating artists must register in advance with Hawai'i Craftsmen, and the public is invited to visit and watch the firings all weekend.

THE EXHIBITION

The Raku Ho'olaule'a exhibition, which will be held the month of April, features contemporary and traditional raku fired at the campout. Our 2023 jurors Ramon Camarillo and Bob McWilliams will designate over $1,400 in cash awards.

MORE INFORMATION

For more information and to register, visit the prospectus at www.HawaiiCraftsmen.org, or email us at info@HawaiiCraftsmen.org.

Image: Russel Wee