Tom Grotta is the cofounder of browngrotta arts, which has specialized in promoting and documenting contemporary textiles and fiber sculpture through exhibitions, catalogs and client and designer consultations for more than 20 years. Browngrotta arts represents the work of more than 80 artists from the US, UK, Europe, Japan and Canada, including pioneers in the contemporary fiber art movement Lenore Tawney, Sheila Hicks and Ed Rossbach, and more than 50 well-recognized artists from abroad. Tom has placed works in dozens of private and corporate collections in the US and abroad, as well as in the permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Museum of Arts and Design, the Art Institute of Chicago, the St. Louis Museum of Art, the Philadelphia Museum of Art, the Renwick Gallery of the Smithsonian Museum and many others.

Tom graduated from Rochester Institute of Technology with a bachelor's degree in photography. He is recognized in the art field for his extensive knowledge of contemporary art textiles and fiber sculpture and for his exceptional photography of fiber art. He has lectured on these subjects at museums and art programs in New York, California and elsewhere. Tom's art photographs are included in several private collections and that of the Museum of Modern Art in Portugal.

browngrotta arts has produced 35 catalogs of contemporary textile art, featuring Tom's photographs and design. The 21st, Art of Substance, won an American Graphic Design award. These catalogs have made a significant contribution to the literature in the fiber art field and to the medium's growing popularity.
